

Dr Magdalena (Magda) Pacholska is a Marie Curie postdoctoral fellow at the Asser Institute (University of Amsterdam), and a research fellow with the Tech, Law & Security Program at the American University Washington College of Law. She is also the Managing Editor of The Military Law and the Law of War Review \(Edward Elgar\).

Before joining Asser, Magda worked as a legal adviser at the Polish General Command of the Armed Forces, where she focused on the legal aspects of interoperability in combined joint operations. Her previous experiences include two EU home and justice agencies, and the UN International Criminal Tribunal for Rwanda. She has been a visiting scholar at the Free University of Berlin, and the Max Planck Institute Luxembourg for International, European and Regulatory International Law.

Magda obtained her Ph.D. in Law at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem. She also holds an LL.M. in International Criminal Law from the University of Amsterdam (joint program with Columbia Law School), a first degree in Law from the University of Warsaw and a MA in National Security from the Warsaw Military Academy. Her research interests include emerging and disruptive military technologies, law of armed conflict, (post)wartime accountability and international legal theory; Magda's list of publications can be found here.
